A beautiful and exceptionally high quality French early 19th century Louis XV st. Sèvres porcelain and ormolu inkwell, signed Sèvres. The inkwell is raised by striking pierced scrolled foliate ormolu movements in a most decorative satin and burnished finished. At the center is the finely detailed Sèvres porcelain tray decorated with beautiful foliate designs, charming birds and lovely gold tooling. The two Sèvres porcelain vessels are decorated in the same manner and fitted within richly chased leaves and flower buds at the base. The pierced lids above each display fine wrap around berried laurel bands and top acorn finials amidst oak leaves which open to reveal the finished interiors. All original gilt throughout.
