An elegant and most unique English 19th century Adams st. Giltwood and Vert de Patricia marble console. This wonderfully decorative console is raised on six baluster shaped fluted legs supported on topie shaped feet and accented with acanthus leaves. Atop each leg is an intricately carved block rosette which separates the floating arches at the bottom of the apron. The apron displays handsome ram's heads above each leg and between diamond shaped rosettes along all three sides. Above is an exceptionally executed Byzantine braid which borders the large scale and solid Vert de Patricia marble top.
