A large and richly carved French 18th century Louis XV period Walnut settee. The "à oreilles" sofa is raised eight cabriole legs below the scalloped apron showcasing wonderful wave like carvings flanking charming scrolled leaves. The scrolled arms lead up each side and upholsterer wings, which served the purpose of directing heat from a fireplace towards the user and keeping it from escaping. The scalloped top of the upholstered back has similar wave like designs amidst additional scrolled acanthus leaves and carved central shells. Upholstered in a two tone green and gold damask fabric.
