A stunning and most decorative French 18th century Régence Period Kingwood, Ormolu, and Rouge Royale marble Tombeau commode. This impressive five drawer commode is raised by elegantly curved feet with pierced Ormolu sabots and beautiful acanthus leaf designs leading up each side to lovely scrolled foliate movements. The drawers each display wonderful pierced scrolled foliate Ormolu pulls with keyhole escutcheons set atop intricately designed Kingwood veneers. The top section contains three locking adjacent sans traverse drawers with the central drawer being much more narrow. The two drawers below have centrally located keyhole escutcheons with similar designs and their stunning veneer decorations. The two sides of this very attractive commode are tastefully decorated with fascinating veneered designs. This commode is finished with a lovely Rouge Royale marble top with mottled edges
