A most decorative French 19th century Louis XV st. Ormolu and Chinese porcelain ewer/vase. The ewer is elegantly raised on a pierced circular Ormolu base with scrolled foliage amidst oak leaves, acanthus leaves, and cabochons. Above is the beautiful blue baluster shaped urn with a scrolled Ormolu handle which starts from the base and leads upwards to the rim. The handle is richly decorated by additional foliate sprays and oak branches all below an open winged dragon with its tail wrapped around the handle. The scalloped Ormolu rim has an elaborate shell like front and scrolled spout. Wonderful details and rich chasing throughout.
