A very handsome French 19th century Louis XVI st. Giltwood and Vert de Patricia marble pedestal, retailed by L'Escalier de Cristal, Paris. The freestanding circular pedestal is raised by an impressive and thick triangular mottled edge Vert de Patricia marble base. Above are three square tapered supports with front and side recessed panels. Each support ends with carved hoof feet and a top scrolled design with front floral carvings. The three supports are joined at the mid section with a richly carved central floral wreath. The top of the supports are joined by a very decorative swaging draped design all below the top apron. The apron is elegantly decorated by a intricately carved berried laurel band all below the Vert de Patricia marble top. Beautiful satin and burnished finish throughout.

L'Escalier de Cristal (1804-1923) is a Parisian house created by Marie Désarnaud in 1804. Famous under the Restoration period, she was the first merchant of her time to offer clocks, candelabras, vases ornaments that combine cut crystal and gilded bronze.
