A remarkable French 19th century Louis XVI st. ormolu and glass lantern. The pentagonal shaped five light lantern displays charming richly chased bottom inverted acorn finials below lovely pierced scrolled foliate elements and a finely detailed band leading upwards. Each side retains its original glass pane with one door at the front which opens to access the five elegantly scrolled arms centering an additional finely detailed acorn finial. Above at each corner are additional foliate mounts flanking the scalloped shaped top with a striking urn of prosperity with a draped berried laurel garland all below the elegant scrolled top cage.
