An extremely decorative and large scale French 19th century Louis XVI st. ormolu clock signed Cheuret. The clock is raised on topie feet below a straight frieze with protruding corners decorated by an entrelac pattern with finely chased rosettes at each corner. The pierced ormolu base is decorated with richly chased swaging berried laurel garlands with a central tied ribbon on each side. At one side of the clock is a winged putti seemingly teaching a cherub holding a tablet and a writing instrument. The spiral fluted socle raises the clock decorated by rosettes, berried laurel garlands and C scrolled handles with rich foliate chasings. Atop is scrolled foliage above the reeded scrolled design. All original gilt.
