A wonderful French 19th century Louis XVI st. Rouge Griotte marble, Ormolu, and patinated Bronze three piece garniture set, by Jacques Gudin, Paris, circa 1820. The elegant set includes a pair of two arm candelabras and a central clock raised on square Ormolu plinths below circular Rouge Griotte pedestals and a fine beaded Ormolu band. A charming patinated Bronze cherub is kneeling while wearing a flowing fabric with his hands raised above his head while supporting the finely detailed clock above. The Ormolu encased clock displays an elegant enameled face displaying Roman numerals and Rocaille designed Ormolu hands within the Ormolu case being flanked by laurel vines, flowing ribbons, and a quiver of arrows crossed with a flaming torch. The clock is signed on its enamel convex dial 'Jacques Gudin', while the back of the clock movement is stamped with 'A G' numbered '2730'. Each wonderful candelabra showcases a charming patinated Bronze cherub standing on one leg while wearing an Ormolu sash around his waist and holding two spiral fluted torches with a berried bottom finial.
