A very attractive French late 19th century Louis XIV st. Rosewood and Ormolu vitrine cabinet. The vitrine is raised on a scalloped apron with rounded corners. The sides have a quarter veneered inlay of Rosewood flanking the doors which are decorated with their original Ormolu mounts with Rocaille shaped shells at each corner. The interior showcases three wonderful Rosewood adjustable shelves. Above lays the original Breche D'Alep marble top. All original rich and warm patina, gilding and glass throughout.
