A beautiful and most decorative Italian 18th century Louis XVI period patinated, giltwood and Fleur de Pécher marble freestanding console. The console is raised by topie shaped feet with patinated tapered fluted legs accented by giltwood acanthus leaves and foliate top caps. The legs are joined by an X stretcher with a very decorative central urn. The patinated frieze has a fluted design on the front and sides with giltwood rosette blocks at each corner and beautifully decorated with a swaging giltwood garland of laurel leaves. Above are scalloped and solid giltwood trims bordering a green faux marble finish which is repeated at the top. All below the impressive fitted Fleur de Pécher marble top.
