A stunning and highly quality Japanese 19th century Imari Porcelain and French Louis XVI st. Ormolu centerpiece. This exquisite centerpiece is supported by four foliate decorated feet flanking central reserves displaying berried foliate and arbalest shaped designs below a reeded and spiral ribbon designed Ormolu band. The finely decorated pierced body has lattice floral patterns, waving linear designs, and square rosette bands along the top and bottom. The two central circular reserves showcase beautiful butterflies within a sunburst designed border. At each side are majestic Ormolu lion's heads with flowing manes. The interior has a highly detailed central design with fauna and birds amongst wonderful blooming flowers and trees. The lattice floral decorations on the sides are flanked by additional circular figures with butterflies and sunburst borders. The Ormolu rim is decorated with a laurel pattern and finished with an upper uninterrupted band.
