An extremely high quality and wonderfully decorative pair of richly detailed Flemish 17th century Renaissance period carved panels in ebony. The pair with a circular central relief, one depicting maidens bathing while the other have maidens and cherub classically draped while conversing in a landscape. Both reliefs are surrounded foliate scrolls and etched floral designs. A reeded curved mottled border is bordered by a similar rectangular framed border with cut angels. At each bottom corner is a charming draped cherub playing the flute while at the top are draped maidens.
