A striking and most decorative pair of French 19th century Louis XVI st. gilt metal, giltwood and velvet wall plaques. Each beautiful plaque is centered by a striking and richly chased central gilt metal medallion. One medallion depicts a beautiful maiden in period attire holding her baby with a staff in his hand and riding on the back of a fawn. The other is of a maiden with her dress falling off her shoulders while playing two flutes with her baby standing behind her and a fawn dancing and playing castanets. Each medallion has trees in the background and are set on a black velvet border within a fine mottled giltwood frame.
