A spectacular and extremely high quality pair of French 19th century Louis XVI st. ormolu and Sarrancolin marble candelabra lamps. Each six arm lamp is raised by an elegant square base with concave corners and a finely mottled wrap around Coeur de Rai band below the impressive spiral fluted socle shaped pedestal support with a richly chased wrap around berried laurel band. The beautifully shaped Sarrancolin marble body is encased with finely detailed foliate designs at the base with stunning swan handles at each side amidst lovely foliate designs and connected by exquisite richly chased swaging blooming floral garlands in a superb satin and burnished finish. The six arms above are seemingly grown out of the top and each displays wonderful branch like designs adorned with charming leaves and flower buds leading to wonderfully detailed floral candle cups also displaying a warm most decorative satin and burnished finish. All original gilt throughout.
