A stunning pair of French 19th century Louis XVI st. Ormolu and white Carrara marble urns. Each most elegant lidded urn is raised on a square Ormolu base with concave corners accented by rosettes. Above is a white Carrara marble support with beaded bands leading to a mottled Ormolu socle below a foliate mount. The mount supports the body of the urns showcasing mottled wrap around bands and entrelacs patterns adorned with rosettes.

Two wonderful scrolled handles flank the urns and lead up to charming swaging garlands connecting to the center with a crossed garland and white Carrara marble reserve. The striking spiral fluted necks are finished with an Ormolu dentil band below the white Carrara marble lids with Ormolu acorn finials.
