An impressive and large scale pair of French 19th century Louis XVI st. Sèvres Porcelain and Ormolu candelabras. The richly decorated pair of seven arm candelabras are supported by four beautiful "C" scrolled acanthus leaf supports flanked by flowers and flowing leaves. Atop is a circular socle pedestal with concave levels amidst a reeded band separating them. Above the socle is a laurel band below a double spray of leaves which support the cobalt blue Porcelain urns. The polished Porcelain urns have highly detailed swaging floral garlands and flowing ribbons that lead to the "C" scrolled arms at the top. The necks of the urns have narrow polished and lightly etched thin cylinders leading up to a fine leafed rim. The foliate rim is below a fanciful abundance of scrolled blossoming flowers and wandering acanthus leaves, which hold the seven floral candle cups.
