A charming pair of French 19th century Louis XVI st. Sèvres Porcelain and Ormolu lidded urns. The pair of urns are raised on square Ormolu bases supported by tope shaped feet. The edge of the base has a wonderful berried laurel band below a Coeur de Rai pattern. Above are the Porcelain urns both having very detailed scenes of a young male courting a seated young maiden. All are wearing classical attire with wonderful expressions. Both front scenes are surrounded by gold trim with white and red jewels. The back of each urn has additional scenes of landscapes. On each sides are richly chased Ormolu handles decorated with various fruits. The attached lid above have additional gilt designs below the acorn Ormolu finial. All original gilt throughout.
