A fabulous pair of French 19th century Renaissance st. ormolu ewers. Each striking ewer is raised by a beautiful scrolled foliate base with a most decorative and unique textured design. The lovely socle pedestal displays fine foliate movements. The body is decorated with an impressive central mask below richly detailed personages laughing and dancing, with musical instruments and drinks in their hands. Leading up each side are beautiful floral designs leading to the wonderfully scrolled handle. Above are two exceptionally executed cherubs laying amidst flowers centered by the spout. All original gilt throughout.
