An elegant and high quality true pair of French 19th century Louis XVI st. Belle Époque period ormolu andirons. Each andiron is raised by fine fluted mottled block feet with reeded and tied designs. Above each foot are richly chased block rosettes flanking striking scrolled foliate designs on a hammered background and a lovely berried laurel band. Above are two urns with the smaller urns decorated with beautiful Vitruvian scrolls, hoop handles, an elegant fluted design, and top berried finials. The larger urns display superb spiral fluted socle shaped pedestal supports with additional Vitruvian scrolls at the body and elegant scrolled handles adorned with impressive finely detailed swaging berried laurel garlands below the lightly curved fluted tops and richly chased top foliate finials.
