An impressive and very high quality true pair of French 19th century Louis XVI st. ormolu and white Carrara marble candelabra lamps. Each seven arm lamp is raised by an elegant square base with cut corners, beautiful block rosettes, arched front sides and backs with lovely foliate designs. The socle shaped pedestal support is decorated with a striking wrap around tied berried laurel band below superb reeded gadroon like designs encasing the body. At each side are stunning richly chased intertwined snakes with exceptional attention to detail centering the fluted elegantly curved body decorated with fine fitted foliate ormolu chandelles. Above a mottled foliate ormolu band are the seven magnificent branch like arms seemingly growing upwards adorned with lovely leaves, flower buds, beautiful blooming flowers with their pistils and stamens, and intricately detailed floral candle cups. Wonderful proportions and exquisite attention to detail throughout.
