A striking true pair of French 19th century Renaissance st. ormolu and patinated bronze ewers. Each ewer is raised by a superb circular reeded base with a fine spiral fluted socle shaped pedestal support with family crest like reserves. The elegantly shaped patinated bronze body is encased within richly chased scrolled ormolu movements, fruit, and foliate designs with lovely floral designs and impressive dragon handles leading up each side with finely detailed scales and wings. The dragons are seemingly biting the tip lip of the elegantly curved spout decorated with additional scrolled foliate designs.
