A handsome and large scale English 18th century flamed mahogany breakfront cabinet. The cabinet is raised by six reeded feet below the straight frieze. At each side are single doors that open to reveal six drawers with turned wood pulls. At the center are four drawers below a striking large faux additional drawer, decorated with a handsome quarter veneered flamed mahogany band. The band pulls out and has mechanical buttons at each side, that folds down to reveal a writing surface, four drawers and a small door opening to a secret compartment. Above are four door with elegant wood framing and all the original hand blown glass panes, below the large mottled top crown. All original hardware. Warm rich patina throughout.
