A stunning and extremely elegant English 19th century George III st. white Carrara marble and Gris st. Anne marble fireplace mantel, circa 1830. The mantel is raised by fine straight jambs with a mottled border and striking richly sculpted scrolled acanthus leaf supports above. At each corner are intricately detailed masks of beautiful maiden's faces within tied berried laurel wreaths. At the center is a charming and richly sculpted reeded urn with lovely blooming flowers below a Les Oves designed band which extends along the top and sides. Above is the original Gris St. Anne marble top showcasing the beautiful marble.
