An outstanding Italian early 18th century Baroque period giltwood and Alabastro Fiorito marble Roman console. The console is raised by a wonderfully executed rock designed base where the charming and richly carved winged cherub is sitting. He is draped in a flowing fabric and holds up superb intricately detailed flowers and leaves. He displays a lovely smile and his wings also display wonderful attention to detail. A large branch extends up from behind him, adorned with elegant leaves. Above is the original striking quarter veneered Alabastro Fiorito top with a fine mottled border. All original gilt throughout.
