A handsome and unique Italian 18th century Louis XVI period dining table with two extensions and one drawer. The walnut table is raised on four square tapered legs with carved recessed panels. Above each leg are burl walnut reserves framed with maplewood fillets that flank the straight apron decorated with subtle recessed carved fillets. At one end is a single drawer with a patinated bronze knob. The top display wonderful warm patina throughout with burl walnut squares and borders framed in maplewood. Each of the two pullouts at each side repeat the same pattern, and measure 28.5" each. Without the pull outs the table measures 88" in length. All original warm patina throughout.
