A very handsome Italian 18th century Louis XVI period walnut credenza. The buffet is raised on a solid straight base below two doors, each with iron keyhole escutcheons and decorated with carved recessed panels. The doors are separated by a fluted column with a richly carved scrolled capital, that is repeated at each side. The doors open to reveal all original original hardware and decorative carved recessed panels. The two drawers at the straight frieze each display two turned brass pulls. The solid rectangular top displays the warm walnut grain throughout. All original patina.
