A charming and extremely decorative Italian 18th century Louis XVI period hand painted and ormolu commode, circa 1750. The three drawer chest is raised by elegant slender square tapered legs with fine hand painted flowers. At the center are three drawers each displaying swaging berried laurel pulls and decorated with wonderfully executed and finely detailed scrolled foliate designs with tied ribbons and charming vividly colored flowers. Each side panel displays stunning hand painted panels of ruins in the beautiful Italian countryside amidst trees and greenery framed within exceptional scrolled foliate borders with bright flowers. The top also displays an exceptional and most decorative hand painted scene framed in the same manner with lovely branches, flowers, and fine acanthus leaf designs at the mottled border.
