A very handsome and impressive Italian 19th century Grand Tour/Neo-Classical st. Green Serpentine marble and Ormolu urn. This decorative urn is raised by a square marble base with a mottled edge circular socle above and a beaded Ormolu band wrapped around its base. The circular body supported by the socle below is decorated by mottled upper edges and a foliate designed Ormolu band with diamond shaped pendants intermittently placed throughout the band. On either side of the top edge of the urn are scrolling marble handles with additional diamond shaped Ormolu pendants on the outside. Inside the spacious body is an uninterrupted interior that can be utilized to serve as a planter.
