An impressive and large scale Italian early 19th century Louis XIV st. Giltwood and grey marble center table. The rectangular table is finished on all sides and is raised on fine topie shaped supports below the baluster shaped legs decorated with handsome acanthus leaf carvings and smooth cabochons above a block with a rosette. Connecting the legs are elegant turned stretchers joining the side legs together and then again connecting at the center with a fine block shaped reserve. The stunning frieze showcases wonderful acanthus leaf carvings centered by impressive scrolls below a seashell designed band which wraps around the table. At each corner are additional block reserves with rosettes all below the handsome grey and white veined marble top. All original gilt throughout.
