A striking and most decorative Italian early 19th century Louis XIV st. Walnut, Maplewood, ebonized fruitwood, and bone center table. The rectangular table is raised by exceptional and most decorative spiraled legs with mottled feet with block reserves each connected by an X shaped stretcher with a superb topie shaped central finial. Above the straight apron is the stunning top displaying superb intricately inlaid designs of bone, Maplewood, and fine pyrograved accents. The top depicts the Italian countryside with trees, bushes, mountains, and clouds in the background with a fallen woman being attacked by a boar while dogs and a man with a spear and a dagger at his belt protect her.
