A most important and large scale Italian early 19th century Louis XV st. giltwood center table. The rectangular shaped table is raised by four 'S' scrolled legs with most impressive and richly carved acanthus leaves over bold flowers and ending with furry hoof feet. The scalloped frieze is decorated by additional 'C' scrolled acanthus leaves and a central shell with a foliate spray above. The central reserve is flanked by a flute all below a mottled top band. Both ends of the table are likewise decorated. At the top lays its original white Carrara marble top with a mottled border and rounded corners. Exceptional quality and proportions.
