A beautiful Italian early 19th century Louis XVI st. giltwood, black polychrome and marble freestanding console. The console is raised by square tapered legs with unique circular feet and finely carved foliate giltwood movements. The straight frieze displays a most decorative fine twisted giltwood band. At the center, a mask holds a ring in it's mouth, is flanked by foliate movements and set on a black polychrome background. The original thick veneered marble top displays a quarter veneered red Breche marble framed within a Vert de Patricia border. All original gilt and patination throughout.
