An important and most impressive Italian mid 19th century Moucheté mahogany Regency st. console, possibly by renowned woodworker Peters. The large scale freestanding console is raised by mottled supports below impressive circular tapered legs with handsome richly carved paw feet and finely detailed foliate designs. Intricately detailed scrolled leaves branch out from the legs leading up to the straight apron. The apron is centered by a singular concealed drawer. Above is the French polished top showcasing the stunning Moucheté mahogany grain.
