An exquisite English 18th century rosewood and fire gilded ormolu cabinet. The cabinet is raised on scalloped feet below a straight frieze centered by a sensational pierced palmette shaped ormolu mount with a rosette at each side and a giltwood band above. Each extremely decorative door has a pleated silk panel with inter crossing ormolu, and opens to reveal one adjustable shelf. At each side are S scrolled supports with a reeded ormolu mount below and an elegant pieced ormolu palmette. The apron has a bottom trim of a small and intricate pierced brass fillet on an ebony back plate. Above is a central richly chased ormolu mount with a rosette at each side and a giltwood band above. The original white Carrara marble top with a three quarter pierced ormolu gallery. All original gilt.
