An elegant and high quality French 18th century Regence period Kingwood, ormolu, and brass cabinet vitrine. The vitrine is raised by scalloped shaped supports and a straight base with a mottled brass band. At the center are two doors, each retaining their original glass panes framed within a finely detailed wrap around foliate band with a striking richly chased seashell and acanthus leaf reserve. The doors open to reveal three shelves, all original hardware, and are separated by beautiful fluted designs with fine fitted brass fillets leading upwards. The sides display beautiful quarter veneered panels showcasing the stunning wood grain. All original gilt throughout.
