A handsome pair of French 19th century Louis XVI st. ormolu and white Carrara marble lidded urns. Each urn is raised by a circular white Carrara marble base with an elegant lightly curved design and a fine wrap around beaded ormolu band. At the center are four finely curved legs, two of which display hoof feet centering a rosette. The reeded urns above display striking richly chased bearded satyrs with horns and grape clusters in their hair at the front and back. At each side are impressive and finely detailed swaging berried laurel garlands and large acanthus leaves. The necks display beautiful foliate scrolled rinceaux movements with palmettes and floral finials finishing the removable lid above. All original gilt throughout.
