An attractive pair of French 19th century Renaissance st. patinated bronze ewers, modeled after François Michel Sigisbert (1728-1811). Each ewer is raised on a square base with reeded socle. The bottom of the ewer is decorated with finely chased foliate patterns below classical scenes of cherubs and couples. Scrolled intertwined serpent handles at the fluted spout with richly chased lion heads. All original patina throughout.

François Michel Sigisbert (1728-1811) Renowned French Sculpture. Studied at l'Académie Saint-Luc. Commissioned by the Prussian King and created in Berlin before returning to Paris, where he continued with works of fancy and fantasy. He displayed at several Expositions in France including the Salon du Louvre.
