A handsome and richly decorated pair of French 19th century Renaissance st. silvered bronze, ormolu and patinated bronze ewers. Both are raised by a square ormolu base with rounded corners which are decorated with scrolls and intertwined designs. Above is the patinated bronze socle with oval designs and an ormolu beaded band below the silvered bronze center. Each ewer has a masculine mask and an elaborately decorated 'C' scrolled ormolu handle of an elegant open winged female maiden with her hair in an updo. The upper patinated neck and spout are decorated with foliate scrolls.
