An elegant French late 19th century Transitional st. mahogany brass and ormolu side table. The table is raised by four cabriole legs ending with ormolu sabots. The legs are joined by a bottom tier with white Carrara marble within a fanciful ormolu pierced gallery. The upper portions of the legs have a fluted fluted design with chandelles. The apron with finely grained mahogany has recessed panels and quarter round filets of brass. All below the original mottled edge white Carrara marble top.
