A striking Italian early 18th century Louis XIV period giltwood and faux marble freestanding console. The console is raised on four slender reeded cabriole legs with hoof feet. Above are acanthus leaf carvings and a scrolled top decorated with richly carved rosettes and a pierced swaging laurel garland. At each corner is a richly carved masculine bearded face. At the straight fluted frieze are swaging laurel garlands with rosettes centered by a charming hand painted central reserve of birds framed in a rich giltwood wreath below a bow. All below the faux painted red Porphyry top. All original gilt and paint.
