A most impressive and handsome Italian mid 18th century, circa 1740, walnut commode from Naples. The chest is raised by a mottled base flanked by S scrolls which define the legs. The front corners has a curved design with recessed mottled panels and a decorative richly chased brass keyhole escutcheon. The four drawers with a rich grain and patina have an elongated horizontal panel design, also with the same high quality keyhole escutcheon.

The thick top following the contours of the commode has the same rich patina. All original locks and keys.
